APOTREOSIS OF LOVE. BY PRILIP JARRE BAILEY

Wothing will stand whose staple is not love. The love of deed, or man, or bleedy woman. The first is scarcely touched, the next scarce feld, the third is described; lift the ment of the love of the third is described; lift the inperious of the love of the lo

A Conuns-Taking Assecdate. In eudeavoring to take the census for the government, the marshals occasionally meet with such difficulties as well nigh to deprive them of their own senses. The following took place in Canal-street New Orleans:

"Who is the head of this family?"
"That depends on circumstances. If before 11 o'clock, its me husband—if after 11 it's mese'f."
"How so?"

"How so?"
"Because afther 11 he's as dhrunk as a piper, and unable to take care of himself, let alone the family."
"What is his age?"
"Coming nixt Mechalmas he will lack a day of being as old as Finnegan. You know Finnegan?"

"No I don't know Pinnegau; and If I did it would not help matter. Is your husband an alien?"

"Och thin, he's ailin' entirely. He has rheumatics worse than owld Donnelly, who was tied double wid'em." How many male members have you in the

"How many male members have you in the family?"
"Nivir a one."
"Boys is it? Ahl murther, go home. We have boys enough to whip four loaves of bread for breakfast."
"When were you married?"
"The day Pat Doyle left Tippirary for Americy. Ah well I mind it. A sunshiner day niver gilded the aky of owld Ireland."
"What was the condition of your hueband before marriage?"

"What was the condition of your husband before marriage?"
"Divil a man more miserable. He said if I did not give him a promise within two weeks he'd blow his brains out with a crowbar."
"What was he at the time of your marriage, a widower or batchelor?"
"A which? A widower, did you say? Ah, now go way wid yer nonsense. Isn't the likes of me that would take up a second hand husband! A poor divil all legs and consumption, like a sick turkey. A widower? May I niver be blissed if I'd rather not live an ow'd maid, and bring up a family on butter milk and praties."

Here the dislogue ended, the marshall coming to the conclusion that he could "make more" next door. Whether he did we will know at some future time.

Shrewd Trick of a London Female Thiel. The London thisres are quite as sharp, but rarely as anocessful as their brethren in this country. One morning, recently, a woman who called herself Clara Jones, went to a linen draper's shop, in the English city, and chose a quantity of silk, lace and velvet, desiring to have the parcel and the bill sent to her address. One of the salesmen took the goods to the place assigned and we reher address. One of the salesmen took the goods to the place sassigned, and was received by Clara in the crawing-room. She came out of a bed-room adjoining, and said that the lady who desired the wares, being temporarily an invalid, and confined to her bed in the next room, wished to have the lace carried in for her inspection. The salesman hesitated a moment, but finally gave up the articles, and the woman retired. When she had gone in he heard a voice in the bed-room say, is the plaintive tones supposed to be peculiar to feminine invalids. If must see the silks." So Clara returned to the drawing-room, and-succeeded in carrying in the lag-room, and succeeded in carrying in the lag-room, and succeeded in carrying in the cilks. The young man again heard two voices is consultation, and also saw through the partly open door what appeared to be the figure of a woman bolstered up in the bed. This inlied his suspicions, and when the well woman came out the third time to take in the velveta, he, with comparative cheerfulness, allowed them to go out of his keeping. Then the door was shut. Then the young man waited, and hoped, and became very tired. Then he called in the landlady. The landlady knew nothing about Miss Clara Jones or her mistress; the former had but that morning hired the apartments. He then invaded the privacy of the invalid's room, and found no invalid, only a clumally-made dummy; laces, silks, velvets, Clara Jones and all had gone. The latter had played a double game in more senses than one, and had retired with her plunder. She was not to go unwhipped of justice long, however, for, trying to dispose of her stuff to a pawnbroker she was taken into custody, and had a second interview with the salesman across the room of a police court.

As Unappreciating Judge.—Judge Hof Detroit, although celebrated in his profession, was noted among his acquaintances as being very duil of seeing a pun. One day, being at a dinner party, the following connadram was given by one of the guests:

"When is a young lady like a vehicle in common use?"

An ASSESSOR ABOUT PRAYERS—We have heard some prayers which were designed to affect the hearer sather than to reach heaven. The fallowing characteristic anedote of John Randolph is a keen rabelee of the practice.

In one of his spells of repantance and sickness, he was visited by a minister, who at his request, prayed for him. The minister began on this wise: Lord, our friend is sick.
Thou knowset how generous he was to the poor, and what eminent services he has rendered to his country, and how he is among the floorest and great men of the carth—
"Stop, stop" said the impatient Randolph,
"no more of such staff, else the Lord will damp as both."

Paramera a Wireless roo Fas.—The Quebec Chronicle says:

At a recent election investigation, not one hundred miles from Montreal, a celebrated manipulator was azamining the witness on his own behalf. One of these witnesses he was very severe upon, and insisted on a reply to this quantion;

Now, sir, upon your on heading you ever heat my opposent say that I should be in the Penticulary; or if I had my due, I would be there?

erel"
"Well, els, if you insist on it, I must say ver did hear your opponent say so, but was heard a great many others say, it."

THE DAILY PARSS, since it came under the preser anagement, has increased rapidly in circulation and has now probably as large a circulation within the city of Cincinnati as any other journal, and is in creating at a rate equal to the most sanguine expectations of its proprietors.

From its large circulation, and from its size which makes sovertisements much more conspicatous tha they can be in the large papers, THE DAILY PRESS offers the most valuable advertising medium in this city. Its advartising business has largely increased and its columns are a respectable exhibit of the busi ness and enterprise of the city. Its columns are especially looked to for a large class of advertisements of Wants" and "For Sale," and for servants, etc. which almost invariably bring prompt answers People who are out of employment, or who wan help of any kind, can place their needs before thou ands of the laboring or employing classes by a twen -five-cout advertisement in THE DAILY Pages. THE DARLY PRING has also a larger circulation in Covington and Newport than the aggregate of all the other Cincinnati papers.
